Dear NYSABE Members,

Welcome to the 2017 NYSABE Conference! On behalf of our Board of Directors, Delegate Assembly and Executive Director, we are excited to share effective pedagogical practices, policy updates, and fellowship with you and other educators and advocates from across New York State.

The 2017 annual conference theme, “Families, Practitioners, Partners, and Policy Makers: Fulfilling the Promise of Bilingual Education Together,” is a call to action for members of our educational community to strengthen our spirit of collaboration and unity to realize the full potential of bilingual education. During these uncertain sociopolitical times, when the education of our ELLs/multilingual learners will inevitably face serious challenges, it is imperative that we seize every opportunity to speak up with one voice and ensure that our educational system supports their diverse needs and talents. Bilingual education holds the promise of a world citizenry that is well prepared to meet the challenges of a global economy and to embrace diversity, multilingualism, and multiculturalism; therefore we, members of the multilingual educational communities, must strive to sustain this vision by working together.

Planning, coordinating, and executing a conference takes a tremendous amount of collaboration and effort. It would not have been possible without the skill and expertise of our conference chairperson, Iraida Bodré. I would like to extend my sincere and enthusiastic thanks to her and all the wonderful committee chairpersons and members who assisted. I also extend a very special thank you to our devoted and tireless Executive Director, Nancy Villarreal de Adler, whose hard work and support at every step of the way were invaluable.

I look forward to your participation and feedback throughout this year’s conference and thank each of you for your work on behalf of ELL/bilingual learners. It is only through working together that we will “fulfill the promise of bilingual education” for our students.

Sincerely,
Tamara Alsace
NYSABE 2016-17 President
February 7, 2017

Dear NYSABE Conference Attendees:

On behalf of the 20 States and 3 International Affiliates (China, Spain, Mexico) representing bilingual education teachers, professors, researchers, parents, advocates and policy makers who collectively serve the needs of our nation’s 4.7 million Dual Language Learners (DLLs) and English Language Learners (ELLs), the National Association for Bilingual Education (NABE) is honored to extend our heartfelt Congratulations to NYSABE, one of NABE’s most faithful and supportive affiliate, on this very important celebratory occasion of your 40th Annual Conference on March 2-4, 2017 in White Plains, NY.

We believe that your Conference theme honoring “Families, Practitioners, Partners, and Policy Makers: Fulfilling the Promise of Bilingual Education Together” is most appropriate and serves as a wonderful call to action for members of your educational community to strengthen your spirit of collaboration and unity to realize the full potential of bilingual education and to engage in dialogue and significant learning opportunities that will continue to enhance our collective ability to more effectively serve our bilingual/multilingual and immigrant students. NYSABE has an exemplary record of always being in the forefront of leading the fight for justice, access, equity and opportunities for ALL students, especially our English Learners and immigrants.

During these uncertain sociopolitical times, when the education of our ELLs/Multilingual learners will inevitably face serious challenges, it is imperative that we seize every opportunity to speak up with one voice and ensure that our education systems support their diverse needs and talents. NABE further believes that at a time of shrinking resources and international interdependence, the United States can no longer afford the luxury of linguistic parochialism and cultural imperialism. It is poor policy to squander the existing reservoir of human talent that is already familiar with other cultures and other languages.

NABE is very pleased and excited to endorse and to reaffirm our strong partnership with NYSABE, its many volunteers, families, practitioners, partners, policy makers, sponsors, parents, teachers, and participants for your tireless and most effective work in equipping our teachers and educational leaders most proximate to students with concrete guidance for these days ahead. YOU are on the frontlines of American civil society. YOU are first responders for our children and families who may be confused, scared and grieving on a daily basis with the fear of deportation, disruption, social upheaval and retaliation simply because they are immigrants and bilingual/multilingual learners.

This is a MUST Conference that will undoubtedly create a wonderful opportunity to build cultural and language awareness and recognize the value of diversity as a fundamental opportunity to unite multilingual voices in our country and across the world in serving bilingual/ multilingual students, one of our nation’s greatest assets.

NABE is certain that you will be inspired by keynotes, featured presentations, work sessions, professional development and many hands on sessions that certainly will encourage and inspire our new cadre of bilingual teacher leaders, practitioners, policy makers, families, researchers, professors and the business community.

Congratulations! Felicidades! ¡Si se puede!

Sincerely,

Dr. Minh-Anh, President

Dr. Santiago Wood, Executive Director

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

On behalf of the NYS TESOL Executive Board, I want to THANK YOU for your tireless commitment to the field of education, in general, and to bilingual/multilingual students, in particular. Regardless of your titles and the settings, I know that you devote endless time, energy, and resources to provide high quality education to your students.

The conference theme, Families, Practitioners, Partners, and Policymakers: Fulfilling the Promise of Bilingual Education Together, could not have been more apt as you celebrate your 40th anniversary. And in this current political climate, it is more important than ever for all stakeholders to work together to advocate for our profession and our students and their families, who by definition, cannot advocate for themselves. In addition, it is imperative for us to be educational resources for our policymakers and share research based information about bilingual education and best practices in order for them to make informed decisions.

Equally important is our work with parents and families. Kudos to NYSABE for always remembering the families as an essential partner to the work that we do in schools. The Parent Institute that is offered each year is a fantastic opportunity to connect with families and for them to learn about how they can support their children and their academic success. Without families, we would not be able to achieve what we’ve been charged to do: provide high quality education to all our students.

Lastly, I want to congratulate NYSABE President, Dr. Tamara Alsace, Executive Director, Nancy Villarreal de Adler, the Board of Directors, and the Delegate Assembly, on another great year. The countless hours that you spend to represent the organization and to provide support to those in the field is exceptional and admirable.

I wish you continued success in your work and I look forward to strengthening our collaborative efforts in the coming years.

Sincerely,

Anne Henry
President, NYS TESOL

Dear Conference Participants,

The NYS Council of Educational Associations (NYSCEA) is proud that our member association, the New York State Association for Bilingual Education, will be holding its 2017 Annual conference, Families, Practitioners, Partners, and Policy Makers: Fulfilling the Promise of Bilingual Education Together.

NYSCEA and its member organizations through our collaborative efforts attempt to break down barriers across curriculum areas that prevent our English Language Learners and Multi Lingual Learners from achieving. On March 2-4 at the Crowne Plaza-White Plains Downtown Hotel, NYSABE members will be able to strengthen the spirit of collaboration and unity to realize the full potential of bilingual education. NYSCEA knows that the workshops and speakers present will offer a wealth of knowledge to participants in their quest to facilitate the success of each and every one of our bilingual students. We encourage participants to take advantage of all this NYSABE conference has to offer.

NYSCEA encourages collaborative work among all of our member associations to develop and implement programs for students and professional development for teachers so all NYS students can fulfill their dreams. This conference will support New York’s Bilingual students and teachers. On behalf of NYSCEA, I extend best wishes for a meaningful and productive conference.

Sincerely,

Marc E. Greene
NYSCEA President 2015-17

Dear NYSABE Members,

As the 2017 President of the New York State Association of Foreign Language Teachers, it is my pleasure to welcome you to the 2017 NYSABE Conference.

We have a long history of fruitful collaboration promoting the study of world languages and supporting our world language learners, our bilingual learners and our English language learners. That collaboration is best exemplified in our collective work towards making the New York Seal of Biliteracy a reality for our students as well as our continued efforts to restore the NYS Regents and Proficiency examinations. We look forward to the continued collaboration with NYSABE for 2017 and beyond.

On behalf of NYSAFLT, please accept our best wishes for a wonderful day of professional development and collegial networking.

Sincerely,

Marie J. Campanaro
NYSAFLT President
Dear NYSABE Members,

On behalf of the FLACS Board of Directors, I wish you a most successful conference! Many of our members have the honor of overseeing not only World Language programs, but also English as a New Language and/or bilingual programs in their districts. As advocates who promote language learning at all levels, we appreciate that conferences, such as yours, bring theory to practice alive for our teachers who attend your events.

The conference theme of Families, Practitioners, Partners, and Policymakers: Fulfilling the Promise of Bilingual Education Together takes on greater significance this year given the challenges that educators are facing at both the local and national level. It is only through advocacy and partnership to promote bilingual education that we will be able to ensure that our children are prepared to enter the global community. Our nation’s success and survival rests on a society that promotes and respects ALL languages and cultures.

Sincerely,

Francesco L. Fratto
March 2, 2017

Dear NYSABE Colleagues and Friends,

We are privileged to collaborate in the work of supporting bilingual educators, who believe in the power to make a difference in our English language learners. We are grateful to be sharing alongside NYSABE during a time where collaboration, respect, parent engagement, advocacy, and professional development are flourishing in the NYC Department of Education. As a sister organization and your partner, the Association of Dominican-American Supervisors and Administrators (ADASA) congratulates your annual conference and trusts that you will continue to invigorate our stakeholders by ensuring exceptional support to further expand bilingual education for many years to come.

As the federal and state governments team up with local school districts to develop collaboration, curricula, leadership, provide professional development opportunities, and enhance school knowledge of best practices in bilingual education, the urgency of NYSABE and ADASA to make policy makers aware of the needs of our students is paramount. We must continue to advocate for equity and developmentally appropriate practices for our multilingual students.

Together, we can be the vision, vehicle, voice, and hope our students need. With our collaborative expertise we can also provide the resources and inspiration that our members need to build our students’ cultural, academic, social, and cross-lingual knowledge.

We encourage you to continue inspiring with passion, serving with distinction, supporting one another with humility, and working incessantly to bring equity to every student we educate. Congratulations on a successful conference.

Fraternally,

Vivian Bueno

ABOUT NYSABE

THE PURPOSE

The New York State Association for Bilingual Education (NYSABE) is a tax-exempt, not-for-profit, statewide organization of professional and advocacy members founded in 1976 to address the educational needs of language-minority students, who are English language learners (ELLs)/bilingual learners.

NYSABE is a multilingual and multicultural association that represents multiple language groups and educational sectors throughout the State. The Association unites educators, parents, school administrators, college professors, researchers, community and business leaders, elected officials, the media and policy makers with a common interest in excellence and equity for ELLs/bilingual learners.

NYSABE encourages the establishment, maintenance, and expansion of quality bilingual educational programs. It also promotes bilingual education as a process by which students achieve success through instruction in their home language while learning English. NYSABE supports the belief that language pluralism and bilingual competence in English and other languages benefit the nation and all its citizens, and that bilingualism and biliteracy are critical components of contemporary education in the United States.

NYSABE is affiliated with the National Association for Bilingual Education (NABE) and The New York State Council of Educational Associations (NYSCEA).

NYSABE collaborates with professional organizations, including the New York State Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (NYS TESOL), the Association of Dominican American Supervisors and Administrators (ADASA), and the New York State Association of Foreign Language Teachers (NYSFLT).

THE MISSION

It is NYSABE’s mission as an organization to dedicate itself to the promotion of services for ELLs/bilingual learners through instruction in their home language and English, i.e., students receive academic instruction in their home language, a language they can understand, while acquiring proficiency in English.

It is our intent to promote bilingualism for all, whereby English speaking students also learn a language other than English, to increase literacy in two languages, promote cultural awareness, and provide educational equity and excellence for students in New York State.

NYSABE involves parents of ELL/bilingual learners in the process of schooling and in public policy decisions that affect them and their children. NYSABE promotes public understanding of the importance of language and culture in education, and defends the rights of linguistic minority communities to promote a pluralistic society.

Enabling Student Success: A New Approach
Presenters: Karen Gross, Author/Educator, Widmeyer Communications; Ivan Figueroa, Director of Diversity Initiative, Southern Vermont College
Concrete strategies to facilitate student success in and outside the classroom will be addressed. The goals of this session will be to introduce the new approach, share how it differs from current approaches and then how it can be animated throughout the educational landscape. Special attention will be paid to how lasticity can and does benefit bilingual and multi-cultural students and their families in ways not now emphasized or addressed. Indeed, schools, families and communities that adopt this new approach will be able to measure improvements tangibly.

Effective Ways for Families to Support their Children in Mathematics
Presenter: Archangelo Joseph
This session will present strategies on how parents and families can best support their children at home in mathematics. In particular, participants will engage in a variety of activities designed to foster math learning among their children. For example, in cooperative groups with hands-on materials (e.g., supermarket flyers), parents and families will strive to make greater sense of such key mathematical concepts as fractions, percentages, patterns, and equations. In turn, they will help their children make connections between the aforementioned topics and the mathematical concepts taught in school.

Language in Context: Literacy Scaffolds for K-5
Presenters: Kim Wojehowski, Suffern CSD, Jamie Moran, Marlboro CSD

At a time when educators are exploring how best to meet the deeper, more complex language demands of the Common Core, the quest for effective approaches to ensure language learner (LL) access and achievement continues. To intentionally support language development and academic achievement of LLs, it is essential that general education teachers and ENL specialists find ways to coordinate their instruction in a way that is both culturally and linguistically responsive and accessible. Participants will examine teaching moves designed to make cultural assumptions in text explicit and visible to language learners. To show how to systematically organize instruction, the presenters will unpack the Teaching and Learning Cycle (Rothery, 1996), model scaffolds, and show how accessibility strategies and activities can be integrated into both Stand Alone and Integrated models of instruction. Small group discussion questions will be embedded throughout the presentation.

Challenging Fake News about Undocumented Students with Facts
Presenter: Della DeKay, St. Johns University

The election of 2016 contained many fake news stories about undocumented immigration. For example, fake news stories threatened undocumented immigrants with immediate deportation. These reports, which terrified many teachers and students, ignored undocumented students’ federal and state constitutional rights. In some instances, fake news has empowered native-born students to bully immigrant students. The objective of this presentation is to (1) explain the reality of undocumented immigration; (2) look at the rights of undocumented immigrants and (3) help teachers explain undocumented students’ legal rights and places where they can go for help. Topics include: a discussion of undocumented immigrant students’ rights; the path to citizenship; the relationship between school and undocumented immigrants; the free legal resources families can use to protect themselves; and the type of immediate changes can the new administration can legally make to immigration policy.

Pragmatics and Perceptions of International Chinese Students and American Peers: Reflections of Sociolinguistic Norms and Values
Presenter: Miriam Eisenstein Ebsworth, NYU Steinhardt, Timothy John Ebsworth, The College of New Rochelle, Chencen Cai, NYU Steinhardt

We investigate the sociolinguistic strategies and judgments of international Chinese students communicating in English in the US with those of their American peers. Using responses to critical incidents as a focus, we explore the participants’ understandings of the local language varieties and subcultures with which they come into contact. The possibilities for pragmatic failure are considered along with the native norms and values that may underlie their choices and interpretations. Drawing on a mixed methods approach, we began with natural observation and interviews of members of the populations in the study to draw on their experiences and identify critical incidents, situations they have found challenging in their interactions with the opposite group. Based on alternative responses to these incidents and semantic formulas elicited from the Chinese and American participants, we ask all participants to evaluate four alternative solutions on a series of semantic differential scales to each of 5 incidents, reflecting a range of settings and relationships. These quantitative findings are further explored via semi-structured interviews with a subset of participants and experts to identify the socio-linguistic norms and values of each group reflected in the data. While all Chinese participants are fluent in Mandarin and have advanced American English proficiency, intervening variables that may affect outcomes will be considered. Implications for bilingual education and professional development will be explored. Audience participation a must.

Equity in Education for English Learners
Presenter: Nellie B. Mulkay, NYS Language RBE-RN

The objective of this oral presentation is to explore the meaning of equity in education with a focus on English learners (ELs) in the context of actions that have been taken by the New York State Education Department, all meant to address and increase opportunities, fairness and achievement across the various EL groups throughout the 700 school districts of New York State. A review of the EL languages, school grades, graduation data, regulations and placements will illustrate the importance of The Blueprint for ELs Success, as well as some additional actions still needed. Most importantly, the presentation will attempt to show that the more we know about individual groups of ELs, the more successful we can be in providing appropriate services and achieving equity.

The value of collaboration among teachers, parents, and the community to support student success has been extensively documented in the educational literature. The faculty and staff of a bilingual school located in Western New York view collaboration as essential in developing and maintaining a culture of bilingualism and biculturalism for all its members. The school has adopted an inquiry-based philosophy to support its dual language immersion program and in so doing has thoughtfully and purposefully embraced collaboration among school stakeholders. This presentation will narrate the multiple ways in which teachers and staff build relationships with each other, parents and the community to support student bilingualism, biculturalism and overall academic success. The presenters will first highlight powerful team and co-teaching practices among Spanish, English, ENL and Special Ed teachers aimed at developing and implementing bilingual units of study in their classrooms. They will then disclose ways in which the school effectively engages parents in their children’s education through ongoing partnerships. Next, the presenters will discuss means to successfully collaborate with the immediate community, neighboring schools, and institutions of higher learning to embrace and support bilingualism and biculturalism. The team will conclude its presentation with an exploration of plans for future collaborative endeavors and a short question and answer session.

Session 303 2:50-3:30PM

iLit ELL: Accelerating Newcomer and ENL English Language Development (Poster Session)

iLit ELL is an evidence-based technology solution specifically designed to accelerate English Language Development in Newcomer and ENL Students grades 4-12. iLit ELL can be delivered either as a core ELA curriculum or as a supplement. The iLit ELL Newcomer lessons guide beginning learners through the initial stages of language acquisition. Newcomer lessons support students in developing their communication and academic skills. iLit ELL is a highly engaging solution aimed at building academic vocabulary, developing fluency, independent reader, writers and speakers. The differentiated instructional routine of iLit is centered around the SIOP instructional model and the gradual release process to inspire independent learning. School districts including Mt. Vernon and many schools in New York City are now experiencing great success with iLit. This session will provide an overview of iLit ELL and allow participants to hear from educators that are seeing amazing results in the classroom.

Session 304 2:50-3:30PM
Audience: T, A, P/F  Room: Pelham
Fostering Oral Language Fluency in Early Grades

Participants will explore a variety of ways to use music, chants and choral recitation to enhance language learning in the classroom. They will engage in activities that foster fluency while helping students speak with the natural rhythm and intonation patterns of American English. All will become familiar with activities that support students in the practice of vocabulary, as well as to introduce and reinforce grammar patterns. Most importantly, participants will experience the joy of the sounds of the English language. For native speakers, stress is key to meaning. Focusing on stress and rhythm, participants will notice the syllable that is stressed in English.
They will be able to implement these strategies without having musical ability. These activities will support language acquisition through speaking and listening activities that are aligned to Common Core.

Using Technology to Improve Academic Language

Presenter: Michelle Emirzian, Genius Plaza

Genius Plaza would like to help fulfill the promise of bilingual education together by presenting a workshop on how to incorporate technology to build academic language. The expected outcomes of the workshop will be to provide teachers with a brief understanding of academic language, how it differs from social language, and how to increase and measure it within their classrooms. Cognizance of varied learning styles and multiple languages amongst students is not only important, but necessary in creating a safe and balanced learning environment. Academic language retention and understanding can be measured through the assignment of tasks in which students summarize, analyze, compose, or edit written and spoken materials, while critically thinking to reach a conclusion.

This is a 90-minute session.
Session 401
Audience: T, TE
Room: Larchmont 2
To Define Is to Know: Teaching the Skill of Defining
Presenter: Helaine W. Marshall, LIU Hudson
In fact, the most common question asked in classrooms is the one that requires the student to define: “What is X?” (Cazden, 2001). When a teacher asks this question, it is not sufficient to point or even to give an example, but rather to provide salient characteristics, functions, and categories appropriate to the given term or concept and couching them in academic language. In this presentation, participants will learn a methodical, explicit set of activities designed to build the necessary linguistic, formal, and content schema for students to learn the skill of defining. The presenter provides examples from math, science, social studies and English language arts to demonstrate the steps involved and show how these steps serve to scaffold the process of producing a student-created, academic definition for a new term or concept. Participants leave with guidelines and samples for use in secondary school classroom instruction.

Session 402
Audience: T, A, P/F, CM, TE
Room: Pelham
Makerspaces: What Can They Do for English Language Learners?
Presenters: Gina Seymour, Claudia Osorio, Islip UFSD
We will share our experiences working with English Language Learners in our school library makerspace and will provide practical advice on creating a hands-on learning area with activities for students of all grade levels and abilities. These activities go across all areas of the curriculum, can be self-directed and promote an environment of collaboration and communication. We will give examples of makerspace activities that promote confidence in special population students something they often lack in other classes.

Session 403
Audience: T, A, R, TE
Room: Briarcliff 1
Incorporating the Bilingual Common Core Progressions into Culturally Responsive Instruction
Presenters: Christa Stevenson, Heather Parris, LI RBE-RN
This presentation will help teachers create learning environments that support cultural awareness and diversity. Lesson plans that incorporate the Bilingual Common Core Progressions and the Teaching Tolerance Anti-Bias Framework will be shared. Resources, activities and strategies that promote a positive school and classroom climate will be provided. Participants will: 1. Learn how to use the Bilingual Common Core Progressions to identify appropriate grade level academic and linguistic demands for ELLs. 2. Explore the four domains of the Teaching Tolerance Anti-Bias Framework 3. Examine culturally responsive resources, instructional strategies and activities.

Session 404
Audience: T, A, R, P/F, CM, TE
Room: Briarcliff 2
How Does Speaking More than One Language Impact Students with Learning Difficulties?
Presenter: Elissa I. Lesser, Bilingual Licensed Psychologist and Certified School Psychologist
What role does it play in their cognitive functioning and executive skills, such as emotional control, organization, working memory and flexible thinking? This workshop will address bilingualism, cognitive functioning and executive skills, and the impact that speaking more than one language has on students’ ability to think, keep feelings in check, organize/keep track of key information in their mind and adjust to the unexpected. By exploring three case studies of elementary age bilingual students, course participants will become more knowledgeable about possible strategies which can be used to help bilingual students with learning difficulties. The workshop will offer an opportunity for participants to debunk myths about bilingualism.

Session 405
Audience: T, A, TE
Room: Yorktown
Supporting Synergistic Literacy: Linking Reading and Writing Instruction in Superdiverse Classrooms
Presenter: Christine Hardigree, Iona College
How do you teach literacy in a secondary classroom of emergent readers from different language backgrounds? This workshop will present promising practices drawn from the Synergistic Literacy Project (SLP), which was a collaborative unit designed through a teacher-researcher partnership to serve language minority students struggling with academic literacy. This workshop will discuss the SLP teaching approach of working across disciplinary boundaries to build upon students' existing literacy skills, including first-language resources, even when students (and teachers) may not share these backgrounds.
Session 406 11:00-11:40AM
Audience: T, A, P/F, CM, TE  Room: Larchmont 1
The New York State Seal of Biliteracy
Presenter: Ricardo Constantino
In 2016, the New York State (NYS) Education Department launched the NYS Seal of Biliteracy which honors and formally recognizes students who have studied and attained a high proficiency in one or more languages, in addition to English, by high school graduation. This presentation will begin by giving a brief history on the Seal. The presentation will highlight the criteria necessary to earn the Seal and the steps districts will take to implement the program in their school(s). Additionally, the presentation will go over the NYSED-required forms that must be submitted. The presentation will conclude with a question and answer session.

Session 407 11:00-11:40AM
Audience: T, A, R, P/F, CM, TE  Room: Scarsdale 1
Effective Dual Language Programs in Implementing CR Part 154 Regulations
Presenter: Teddi Predaris, SupportEd
This interactive session focuses on guiding principles for implementing successful dual language programs in meeting new requirements. The session will begin with a brief review of the regulations that relate specifically to bilingual programs, including dual language programs. Next, the presenter will share seven research-based key features for implementing effective dual language programs. The key features will be supplemented with current research from a 2016 U.S. Department of Education national dual language program study. The presenter will share best practices from Syracuse City School District (SCSD) through technical assistance provided to SCSD in enhancing their dual language programs. Resources including additional dual language program strategies and a comprehensive research-based rubric for dual language program assessment will also be provided.

Session 408 11:00AM-12:30PM
Audience: T, A, R, P/F, TE  Room: Scarsdale 2
(90-minute Workshop Session)
Teaching Translanguaging through Poetry
Presenter: Beth Clark-Garcea, SUNY New Paltz
Giving children opportunities to explore their identity and voice through writing is critical to their identity development and academic achievement. In this workshop, we will explore ways in which translanguaging can be incorporated into creative writing lessons in K-12 classrooms. First, participants will be invited to listen to and analyze several poems which use translanguaging in their prose and will reflect upon how translanguaging can expand bilingual writers’ creative repertoires as they express themselves through writing. After discussing the poems and analyzing how translanguaging is used, we will turn to three translanguaging poem templates which can be easily adapted for various school contexts.

Session 409 11:00AM-12:30PM
Audience: T, A, P/F, CM, TE, PC, SC, P, SW  Room: Pleasantville
(90-minute Workshop Session)

Audience: T, A, TE  Room: Pelham

Co-Teaching for ENLs in the Middle School Science Classroom

Presenters: Laureen Avery, UCLA Center X, NE Region, Anthony Patierno, Robert Cáceres, Sleepy Hollow Middle School

This session will outline and describe strategies and lessons that teachers can use with ELLs in order to provide a high-quality, rigorous curriculum that engages students through a variety of activities while also preparing them for state assessment, in this case, New York State’s Living Environment Regents. This will be a Practice-oriented session that focuses on co-teaching, using a science and language teacher, who plan together, prioritizing big ideas but also designing lessons with a specific focus. An emphasis is placed on providing comprehensible input, whether through use of students’ native language or with the strategic use of cognates and simpler English.

Session 502 11:50AM-12:30PM
Audience: T, A  Room: Yorktown

Estrellita: Building a Reading Foundation in Spanish for ELL and SLL Students

Presenters: Perla Sanchez, Karol Vinchez, Estrellita

Participants will gain an overview on how to teach Spanish reading to students in Pre-Kinder to 1st grade using the Estrellita program and the process for teaching systematic phonics in Spanish. Initial Spanish letter sounds are acquired quickly using auditory, visual and kinesthetic modalities. Participants will learn a "chant" and hand signals for the initial sounds. A new, improved approach to teaching syllables based on task analysis will be presented. Both approaches to blending (new and traditional) will be contrasted and the advantages of the new method will be noted. The blending process covers: forming syllables, manipulating syllables to form words, manipulating words to form sentences, and reading and comprehending simple stories.

Session 503 11:50AM-12:30PM
Audience: T, A, R, CM, TE  Room: Sprainbrook

Call to Action: Research on Emerging Bilinguals Labeled as Disabled

Presenter: Maria Cioe-Peña

As the demographics of culturally and linguistically diverse students in the United Stated public education system continue to grow the research on how to best serve these populations follows suit. Currently there is no national or local data on how many students are Emerging Bilinguals Labeled as Disabled (EBLAD), how many are learning in bilingual settings or how many are learning in inclusive settings. In order to answer these questions and to ensure that the needs of EBLADs are being met in the most inclusive and culturally responsive settings we must think beyond “best practices” and explore who these students are. After a brief review of the literature, this paper discusses how these gaps in the literature negatively impact all emergent bilingual students as well as identify areas of research that are in need of attention. Ultimately, this is a call to action to increase research on the faces and names behind the labels.

Session 504 11:50AM-12:30PM
Audience: T, A, P/F  Room: Larchmont 1

Utilizing Translanguaging to Leverage Students' Bilingualism in 21st Century: Possibilities in the Early Childhood Classrooms

Presenters: Cecilia M. Espinosa, Lehman College, Dina López, CCNY

This presentation will address practical ways in which early childhood teachers can create a learning environment that views bilingualism as the norm. In this early childhood setting the teacher both nurtures and challenges the young bilingual students learning through the utilization of their entire linguistic repertoire as a resource. The students' bilingualism and ways of knowing, along with their families’ and communities’ are an integral part of teaching and learning. We will present ways in which teachers can arrange the language ecology of the classroom, invite parents to become partners who actively share their funds of knowledge and language practices. We will also invite the audience to consider ways of organizing culturally and linguistically age appropriate thematic studies, as well as consider books, chants, etc.

Transforming Your Teacher Education Program with the Online Flipped Approach
Presenter: Helaine W. Marshall, LIU Hudson
Bringing flipped learning into an online learning environment goes a long way to addressing the challenges of online learning by creating enriched ways for students to engage with each other, the instructor, and the material, leading to their autonomy and empowerment as learners. Presenter will share the results of implementing this model in a teacher education program, providing benefits and caveats for those interested in flipping their online courses.

Creating a Culturally Responsive Classroom
Presenter: Myriam Augustin, NYS Language RBE-RN
English Language Learners (ELLs) come from different cultures with traditions and family values that differ from the American culture. Teachers play an important role in recognizing the importance of including ELLs’ cultural references in all aspects of learning. Participants will learn about some of the characteristics that comprises creating culturally responsive classroom include. Through a series of activities, participants will be able to experience the elements necessary to plan instruction that is culturally relevant.

Session 507  11:50AM-12:30PM  Room: Briarcliff 2
Audience: T, A, R, P/F, CM, TE
Spanish Text Complexity, Part I
Presenter: Mario Palma, American Reading Company
As emergent bilingual populations continue to grow, the need to provide multi-cultural, multi-perspective, multi-sourced leveled libraries increases. To meet this need, we have the responsibility to use sound leveling systems that reflect authentic Spanish language structures. Not all leveling systems are created equal, nor should they be. Participants will use a standards based leveling system built on a phonics infrastructure (K-2) and a vocabulary infrastructure (3-12) to determine the complexity of texts written in Spanish.

The ExcEL Attitude: A Schoolwide Approach to Excellence for English Learners
Presenters: Laureen Avery, UCLA Center X, NE Region, Rosa Estevez, Tarrytown Public Schools, Mirla Puello, Ossining Public Schools

Two school districts (Tarrytown and Ossining in New York) are partnering with UCLA’s Center X to implement a multi-year program aimed at creating expanded and personalized learning opportunities for students who do not speak English as their first language. Known as Project ExcEL, or Excellence for English Learners, the program combines evidence-based strategies for classroom teaching with support provided by community partners. Elements of ExcEL are being replicated in additional districts this year, you will learn how to adapt and adopt the process at your own site.

Session 602  2:50-3:30PM  Room: Scarsdale 1

Learn from Our Past, Transform Their Future: Language, Race, and Power in America
Presenters: Amanda Monges, Beth Clark-Garcea, SUNY New Paltz

The historical suppression of languages other than English in the United States is long and lamentable. It has run parallel to, and has often converged with, racial oppression, benefiting a few and harming many. In this presentation, I demonstrate the connection between policy, legislation, racism and language by chronologically tracing the history of public sentiment which has alternately sought to smother then defend racial and linguistic minorities in this country. Participants will be presented with materials that show the progression of civil rights in America as they have affected speakers of languages other than English. By clearly understanding our past, participants will be better prepared to defend, advocate for, and fight to expand the rights of students during a time when the hard-won civil rights advances made in our society in general and bilingual education in particular seem especially vulnerable.

Session 603  2:50-3:30PM  Room: Yorktown

English Learners with Learning Disabilities: What is the Current State?
Presenters: Ashley Rodriguez, Diane Rodriguez, Fordham University

As the population across the United States continues to change, specifically with increases in school age English Learners (ELs) who speak a home language other than English, it is imperative that schools meet the diverse needs of these children and that educators strive to be knowledgeable in the pre-referral process and non-biased in assessment in order to avoid over-identification and disproportionality in special education programs. This presentation will summarize studies about English Learners with learning disabilities.

Session 604  2:50-3:30PM  Room: Sprainbrook

Building a Foundation for Dual Language Education
Presenter: Tracy Marchionda, Geneva City Schools

Research provides evidence that students who learn two languages in an immersion setting will outperform their mono-lingual peers. When the Geneva City School District faced the need to establish a bilingual education program, we used this research as a foundation in building a successful Dual Language Program. Participants in this session will learn about the Dual Language Program in the Geneva City Schools. Practical implementation steps will be included and topics such as curriculum, assessments, staffing will be covered. In addition, we will discuss parent and community involvement as well some of the challenges we still face as our program continues to expand.

Session 605  2:50-3:30PM  Room: Scarsdale 2

Know Your Rights: What to Do If You’re Stopped by the Police/Immigration and Customs Enforcement/Customs and Border Patrol
Presenter: Guisela Marroquín, New York Civil Liberties Union
Facilitator: Carlos Sánchez, LHV RBE-RN, Eva García, NYC RBE-RN

This training informs immigrant New Yorkers, both documented and undocumented, of their rights when interacting with both immigration officers and police. The training covers the right to remain silent, the right to speak to an attorney, the right for proof of a warrant before a home raid, and the right for undocumented individuals not to hand over documents that prove their status. It also suggests best practices by immigrant individuals when they are stopped by police, state troopers, Customs and Border Patrol agents, and Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents.

Presenter: Mario Palma, American Reading Company

As emergent bilingual populations continue to grow, the need to provide multi-cultural, multi-perspective, multi-sourced leveled libraries increases. To meet this need, we have the responsibility to use sound leveling systems that reflect authentic Spanish language structures. Not all leveling systems are created equal, nor should they be. Engaging ELLs through Student Interaction

Presenter: Melissa Katz, NYC Charter School Center

In this session, teachers will learn about characteristics of authentic engagement and productive group work. Attendees will also come away with many strategies and ideas for grouping their students for productive interaction, as well as scaffolds to set ELLs up for success in these interactions. Just as we are pushing the adult stakeholders in our educational environments to collaborate, so should we be creating opportunities for our students to collaborate meaningfully and productively in our classrooms.

A Blueprint to Incorporate Translanguaging in Dual Language Bilingual Education

Cristian Solorza, Bank Street College GSE, Gladys Aponte, Tim Becker, NYCDOE

The presenters will share a theoretical model for incorporating translanguaging (TL) pedagogy into dual language bilingual classrooms, including ideas for creating a TL classroom community, TL assessments, and curriculum that is responsive to DL bilingual students. Presenters will also share examples of dual language bilingual curricula that respect both the use of students’ full linguistic repertoires and the integrity of dual language bilingual education models. This work was developed in collaboration with Ofelia García and María Teresa Sánchez as part of the CUNY-NYS Initiative on Emergent Bilinguals.

How We Listen to Emergent Bilingual Readers in Elementary School: Fashioning the Reading Assessment Process for Linguistic Diversity

Presenter: Laura Ascenzi-Moreno

This interactive presentation provides an overview of the reasons why and how informal reading assessments, such as running records, can be modified for emergent bilingual students. The majority of the session will focus on reading assessment practices that teachers can employ when working with emergent bilinguals both in English as New Language (ENL) programs and Dual Language bilingual programs.

Leadership Forum

Presenter: Eudes S. Budhai, Westbury Public Schools

In today’s climate, several school districts are facing many challenges. Our goal is to educate students to become productive citizens that are college and career ready. Now more than ever, we will need to form partnerships to provide students and their families with an optimistic view of getting to graduate from High School and proceed to college/ universities, technical schools or the workforce. The complexities to form a learning community where all stakeholders embrace the positive outcomes of our children will depend on us. The Leadership Forum will host a panel discussion that will discuss some of the challenges and proactive strategies that support: social-emotional mindset in today’s environment, describing complexities of addressing the needs of students in a school district, developing sustainable partnerships through advocacy, and providing guidance through governance and policy that drives change.

GLADYS CORREA MEMORIAL AWARD

Gladys Correa, a New York City bilingual education teacher, was considered one of the strongest advocates for bilingual education and for the education of all children. Through her diligent work as a teacher and her passionate involvement in community organizations, Gladys validated the role of bilingual educators as advocates for the education and welfare of all students and families from linguistically and culturally diverse backgrounds.

Gladys’ energy and vision allowed her to enter the realm of the professional development of bilingual educators in institutions of higher education, particularly in the areas of bilingual education and special education. She believed in the continued professional and personal growth of bilingual educators as a crucial element in the provision of quality education for all youngsters.

As a result of her tireless struggle to provide language minority students with an equitable education through the enhancement of bilingual education programs, and because of her courageous, indomitable voice always raised on behalf of our youngsters, NYSABE wished to preserve the legacy of her exemplary life for future generations by establishing in 1979 the Gladys Correa Memorial Award.

This annual award is presented to a bilingual educator whose professionalism and contributions exemplify the commitment and excellence of Gladys Correa.

This is a 90-minute session.
Session 701
11:00-11:40AM
Audience: T, A, R, P/F, CM, TE
Room: Pleasantville

How Can I Say This Politely? Intercultural Pragmatics of International Chinese Students and American Peers

Presenters: Myriam Eisenstein Ebsworth, Ph.D., NYU Steinhardt, Timothy John Ebsworth, Ph.D., The College of New Rochelle, Chencen Cai, NYU Steinhardt

As emergent bilinguals, Chinese students encounter challenging situations in their communication when they do not know how to respond appropriately. Our mixed design study investigated the language choices and strategies of Chinese international emergent bilingual students using English with Americans in a U.S. context. We identified 5 critical incidents the participants consider challenging in conversing with American English speakers and 4 alternative responses to each. Chinese and American participants rated each response and data were interpreted by a subset of participants and bilingual bicultural experts to reveal underlying norms and values of each community. Follow-up interviews would be conducted to provide an explanation of the cultural values that have generated the evaluations.

Session 702
11:00-11:40AM
Audience: T, A, R, TE
Room: Yorktown

Translanguaging in a Dual Language Bilingual Education Classroom

Presenters: Maite Sánchez, The Graduate Center, CUNY, Hulda Yau, Henry Hudson School #28, Rochester Public Schools

This presentation will help teachers and administrators understand the importance of translanguaging theory and practice in DLBE programs. We will provide an overview of translanguaging, the theoretical foundations and its pedagogical applications. We will also describe a model for how translanguaging can be incorporated into DLBE that has been developed through collaboration between CUNY-NYSIEB researchers and teachers in NYS schools. We will also share examples on how a DLBE teacher in Rochester has been incorporating translanguaging in her classroom.

Session 703
11:00-11:40AM
Audience: T, R, TE
Room: Larchmont 1

PALS for ELLs: Friend or Foe? Effects of Peer-Assisted Learning Strategies on Reading Skills of English Language Learners With and Without Disabilities

Presenter: Gliset Colón, Buffalo State College

Intervening early is key to preventing the pervasive attainment gap in the upper elementary and middle school grades. The gaps in communication, instruction, teacher preparation, and cultural mismatch that affect many ELLs may contribute to the disproportionate representation of ELLs in special education. The raised expectations and high stakes assessments have also resulted in an increase in expectations for teachers’ instructional practices. It is imperative for educators to understand the difficulties ELLs face when acquiring English reading skills. Additionally, the current body of literature on the research on PALS with ELLs with and without disabilities is limited. These studies add to the research base on effective literacy interventions for ELLs with and without disabilities.

Session 704
11:00-11:40AM
Audience: T, A, R, P/F, CM, TE
Room: Briarcliff 1

Overall, as the Emergent Bilingual student population continues to steadily increase, instructional challenges arise. 19 teachers across 2 schools in grades 3, 4, and 5 were interviewed for this study. The findings are helpful for any teacher/administrator in schools that have Emergent Bilinguals.

(90-minute Workshop Session)

Engaging SIFE in Academic Thinking
Presenter: Helaine W. Marshall, LIU Hudson
This interactive workshop helps teachers address the need of SIFE to master Western-style education, most notably the underlying academic ways of thinking required for school success. The workshop facilitator adopts the perspective that these learners’ struggles are often the result of cultural dissonance (Ibarra, 2001) because they generally do not share scientific lenses (Flynn, 2007) that are prevalent in their new setting and instead expect to learn through pragmatic, real world tasks. To this end, the workshop begins by having participants examine their own assumptions about teaching. Next, participants explore the learning paradigm of SIFE. Finally, participants practice designing appropriate instruction by using the Mutually Adaptive Learning Paradigm (MALP) that promotes classroom success for SIFE by taking elements from both perspectives.

Session 707 11:00AM-12:30PM
Audience: T, A, TE Room: Scarsdale 1

Digital Games in the Bilingual/Dual Language Classroom: Using Games to Promote Second Language Acquisition
Presenter: Ricardo Vela, White Plains City Schools
Participants will learn about current research on digital gaming as a formative assessment tool. Also, there will be a focus on digital games that can be used to enhance second language acquisition. Following the presentation on current research, participants will have an opportunity to explore current digital games and develop ways to integrate those games into their pedagogical practices.

Session 708 11:00AM-12:30PM
Audience: T, R, TE Room: Scarsdale 2

Project Based Learning in the Translanguaging Classroom
Presenters: Sara Vogel, CUNY Graduate Center, Elyn Ballantyne-Berry, PS 126 MAT
In this session, presenters will walk participants through some creative examples from the classroom of English as a New Language teacher, Ms. Elyn Ballantyne-Berry, which incorporate the theoretical framework and approach of translanguaging pedagogy intentionally into project-based learning with an eye towards differentiating instruction and pushing students' metalinguistic awareness and sophistication with language. Presenters will also introduce a planning template and guidelines for planning projects through a translanguaging lens. We will support participants in developing ideas for upcoming units and projects -- during a portion of the Seminar, there will be time to brainstorm, plan, and get feedback.

Scaffolding Strategies for English Language Learners in the Mathematics Classroom
Presenter: Marie-Alix Emmanuel, NYS Language RBE-RN
This session will focus on research-based scaffolding strategies that support learning among English Language Learners (ELLs). Taking into consideration students’ prior knowledge, these strategies scaffold mathematics concepts (e.g., fractions, percentages, equations, and functions) that are foundational and essential for all students’ success. In the process (skills/procedural fluency, conceptual understanding, and problem solving) the academic language, and the language of mathematics will be addressed in ways that are more responsive to the needs of ELLs.

Teaching Cultural Awareness through “Critical Incidents”
Presenter: Dr. Ann Wintergerst, St. Johns University
Teachers continue to search for challenging activities to use with their English language learners/bilingual learners. One activity that has worked well with my students and that has peaked their interest is using critical incidents to teach cultural awareness. Through this activity students understand each other better, become culturally-aware, and practice their language skills. What better way to incorporate culture into a class than through critical incidents! A handout is provided.

Session 804 11:50AM-12:30PM

Using Translanguaging Video Projects to Leverage Student Learning in a Multilingual Classroom
Presenters: Ivana Espinet, The Graduate Center, CUNY, Charene Chapman, Ebbets Field Middle School
This presentation will share the process of using translanguaging and video production in a seventh grade ELA classroom to leverage students’ dynamic bilingualism for literacy learning. The projects models how to structure activities that engage diverse learners (some of whom are newcomers) who speak five different home languages, as well as students whose home language is English. The presentation will share the instructional design for two different projects, one in which students individually created video poems as a culmination project after engaging with the study of a novel about a Vietnamese refugee.

Session 805 11:50AM-12:30PM

Spanish Literacy Centers for Native and Non-Native Speakers
Presenters: Leigh Sanna, Yahaira Murphy, Anna Stukes, Eugenio Maria de Hostos Charter School
This workshop will provide Spanish language arts teachers with ideas for new, engaging, and hands-on literacy centers. We are bringing our own tried and tested centers for grades K-8 on topics such as letter sounds, syllables, sight words, fluency, sentence construction, comprehension, vocabulary, and writing. These centers and this workshop focus on allowing all students to fully participate, regardless of their native language. We will share some of our tips and tricks for differentiating centers for native and non-native speakers. Our goals for this workshop are to help inspire teachers with new ideas to take back for immediate use in their own classrooms, and to help teachers create and implement centers that will work for diverse language populations.
